

I'm Sean.

a web designer.

Hi.

I'm a web designer / developer based in Toronto, Canada. I have a passion for web design and love to create for web and mobile devices.

What I can do.

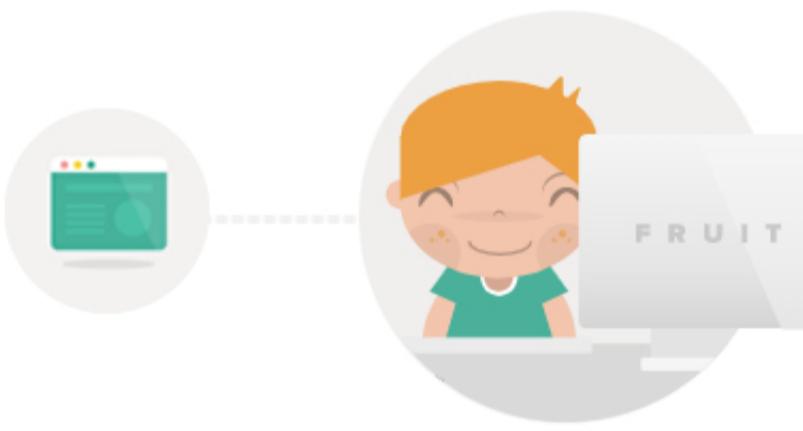

Design what you want.

I like to keep it simple. My goals are to focus on typography, content and conveying the message that you want to send.

Develop what you need.

I'm a developer, so I know how to create your website to run across devices using the latest technologies available.

I can help.

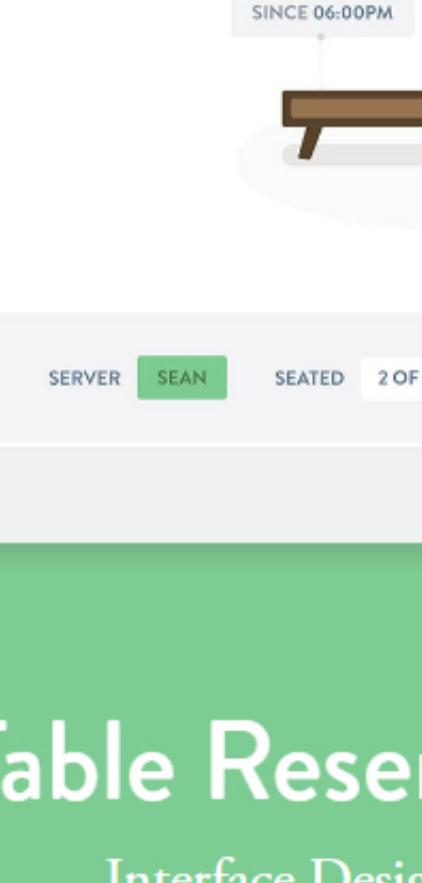

I'm currently available for freelance work.

If you have a project that you want to get started, think you need my help with something or just fancy saying hey, then get in touch.

Work

What I've been up to.

Here's a selection of some recent work. For more up to the minute work you can visit me on dribbble or twitter.

Table Reservation

Interface Design / UI

As an exploration in product design and architecture I have been working on an idea for a restaurant reservation system. Thoroughly challenging thinking through the product design but ultimately rewarding.

Employify

WordPress Theme / UI

I worked on a new WordPress theme for astoundify.com. A job board theme with a heavy focus on video resumes, available for purchase shortly.

Origami

Web Design / UI

I worked with Facebook to come up with a few concepts for a landing page for Origami, their design prototyping toolkit. Here's one of the earlier drafts that I came up with for the site.

Invoice Sherpa

Web Design / UI

I created a marketing site for Invoice Sherpa, a SaaS that helps business owners and book keepers to automate their accounts receivable. I decided to build out the identity around the product name, working in some illustrations to help create the brand.

Realtii

Web Design

I worked on the communication site for Realtii, a reimagining of how people search for real estate. The site called for lots of illustrations to convey its purpose, with a big focus on creating a welcoming feel.

Trizic

UI Design / UX Design / Web Design

Recently I worked on an overhaul of the marketing website for Trizic, a web-based advisory service platform. I used soft colours to keep the website friendly but also maintain its business like nature.

Retrolove

UI Design / UX Design

Retrolove contacted me to give a refresh to their online storefront. I updated their colour palette for a more vibrant, youthful feel & changed their typography to better suit their brand nature.

Text King

UI Design / Web Design / Responsive

Text King specialize in offering copy for a range of services in a short space of time. I decided some clean, flat illustrations were a different way to bring life to the field, whilst making sure the emphasis remained on the content.

Notes

Out with the old...

Life, design, work

Designing a new portfolio is easy. Committing your time and following through with that original concept, that's the tricky part.

I first started working on a new draft of my portfolio in 2011. I haven't been working on this update for two years, but I have been coming back to it ever few months. It's undergone countless iterations.

Why has it taken so long? I've been afraid to commit to any one idea. It seemed like when I would decide upon a certain direction, the web would up and change its game (think responsive design). This was more down to me taking my sweet time more than anything else.

Not that I'm complaining. It practically became a hobby of mine to tinker with a new portfolio. In a way I'm a little sad that the sketching / prototyping / designing / coding elements of the portfolio are ultimately finished, but I'm excited to add some flourishes in the coming weeks and months (I've been toying with snap svg which I'm looking forward to integrating).

In the next few weeks I'm also going to write about the decisions I made while building out this site - inspiration, evolution, content management, execution. Hopefully it may be of some use to those starting out with building their first portfolio - maybe help shave a year or two off it here and there!
